If you're looking to truly get off the beaten path, into Hokkaido's legendary backcountry and to the top of the island's most spectacular volcanoes, this is the trip for you. We've still got several resort based days to make sure we lap up our fill of lift accessed powder (particularly for stormy, low visibility days) but as soon as the sun creeps out we'll be headed for the nearest summit.

As Hokkaido's winter weather is unpredictable, the backcountry and resort based days may change from the itinerary listed below as getting the weather right is essential to making the most of your trip. Your guide will keep you updated on conditions daily and as an added bonus, if a bluebird day comes along, we'll consider making an attempt on the Fuji of the of the North - Mount Yotei. Prior backcountry experience is not necessary but reasonable physical fitness and a desire to earn your turns is essential for this trip.
